

Ellen Hodges Wishes for Computer

Dear friends at Making Memories Breast Cancer Foundation,

Words cannot express the gratitude we feel towards you for the gift of our new computer. Peter and I have been enjoying it tremendously. I have been e-mailing all my friends and relatives to tell them of our good fortune. Using the IBC support web site has been a wonderful experience for me. It is so comforting to be able to talk with others who are going through many of the same trials that I am.

My 8-year old son, Peter, has been very busy with the computer, especially now that school has begun. He practiced writing his spelling test on the computer with no complaints and got 100% on his first test! It's nice to have a "computer veteran" in the home; he certainly has taught me a few computer tricks!

After almost 2 years of treatment, my inflammatory breast cancer has not left me. I continue to have regular chemotherapy treatments. The medicine, along with working full-time and being a single parent (I was widowed 7 years ago) often leaves me feeling overwhelmed with exhaustion. I am thankful that I now have the means to communicate with others any time I feel the urge. God bless you for all you have done for me and for my son.

Gratefully yours,
Ellen Hodge

For he does not willingly bring affliction or grief
to the children of men.*
